FEDERSTAHL INSTITUTE [FULL]

- Aliases: Federstahl Society, Federstahl Research, Federstahl Order
- Type: Secret technocratic society
- Era: Pre-war Germany (1890s–1945)
- Source: [p.95–101]

An elite society of scholars, mystics, and quantum whisperers tasked with protecting the lattice of time. They researched Crystalline Lattice Stabilization through Zerethium Quartz and mapped chronoline fractures using Federkreis Devices.

History:

- 1890s–1900s: Active research at Weimar and Königsberg, using spinning rooms, brass kaleidoscopes, and sacred geometry [p.95]
- ~1930s: The Crystal Lattice Incident — a catastrophic experiment that fractured local spacetime, led to the deaths or "unbirths" of multiple researchers, and rendered a sector of Berlin "quantum-silent" [p.97]
- 1945: Final gathering in a bombed-out cathedral in Berlin, encoding last messages in sonic architecture within pipe organ harmonics [p.101]

The Crystal Lattice Incident:

The experiment succeeded — and the crystal screamed. The resulting fracture scattered Federstahl descendants across the globe and through time. One survivor, Doctor Vorst, was flung back to 1832. The incident created seven temporal fissures, of which only the Wyoming rift remains active and unclaimed.

Canon Notes: Originally described as happening in the 1930s–1940s [p.97], later clarified that researchers were pushed back to the early 1800s [p.98]. The Federstahl's matriarch (possibly Margarethe?) escaped during a failed experiment involving a crystal lattice [p.95].

ORDER OF THE SEAM [MODERATE]

- Type: Secret order
- Founded: 1271, by Margarethe von Hooplehopper
- Source: [p.35; data/vuorse_system_prompt.md]

Founded by the Painted Widow to preserve Hildebrand's teachings. The Seam refers to the hidden space between the visible and invisible — the stitching that holds reality together. Members practiced the Ritual of Reflection and preserved knowledge through shadow puppetry and needlepoint.

ORDER OF THE GARTER'S SECRET HEM [SKETCHED]

- Type: Secret order
- Founded: 1522, by Velma the Snake in Silk
- Source: [p.36]

Founded by Velma in Venice. No further detail provided beyond its establishment. The name parallels the real Order of the Garter but with a textile-based secret component.

THE VEINCALLERS [SKETCHED]

- Type: Rogue practitioners
- Source: [p.95]

Rogue time-sympaths who tried to tap into buried time currents. Pop was identified as "the last of the Veincallers." They attempted to open "ribbon gates" — the unmarked graves on the McCullen Ranch are evidence of their failed attempts.

THE RUSTWOVEN [HOOK ONLY]

- Type: Group / designation
- Source: [p.94]

Associated with the Dustbrand Sigil. The Dustbrand is described as "the emblem of the Rustwoven." No further development of who or what the Rustwoven are.
